DETAILED ACTION

REJECTIONS WITHDRAWN

1. There are no rejections withdrawn.

REJECTIONS REPEATED

2. All of the 103(a) rejections set forth in the non-final rejection of 5/23/06, pages 2-5, paragraphs 3-6 are repeated for the reasons of record.

NEW REJECTIONS

3. There are no new rejections.

ANSWERS TO APPLICANT'S ARGUMENTS

4. Applicant's arguments filed 8/28/06 have been carefully considered but are deemed unpersuasive.

Applicant has argued that Nash does not disclose that the silica is embedded on the outer surface of the gloves but rather discloses that the silica particles are disposed on the inner surface of the gloves. However, Nash discloses that the silica particles embedded on the outer surface (abstract and column 2, lines 30-44). Furthermore the title of CS '117 discloses colloidal silica particles on the outer surface of the gloves so even if it were argued that Nash does not disclose that the silica is embedded on the outer surface of the gloves but rather discloses that the silica particles are disposed on the inner surface of the gloves, CS '117 clearly discloses silica particles on the outer surface of the gloves.

In response to applicant's arguments against the references individually, one cannot show nonobviousness by attacking references individually where the rejections are based on combinations of references. See In re Keller, 642 F.2d 413, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981); In re Merck & Co., 800 F.2d 1091, 231 USPQ 375 (Fed. Cir. 1986).

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, the motivation is provided by Nash in that embedded silica coatings provide improved strength (column 2, lines 13-53).

In response to applicant's argument that the purpose of applicant's invention is to provide an improved gripping strength while Nash provides a lower coefficient of friction, the fact that applicant has recognized another advantage which would flow naturally from following the suggestion of the prior art cannot be the basis for patentability when the differences would otherwise be obvious. See Ex parte Obiaya, 227 USPQ 58, 60 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1985).

Art Unit: 1772

Applicant has argued that CS '117 fails to exclude any separate binder material. However, the title of CS '117 excludes binder material since both the inner and outer surfaces are coated and there is no disclosure of a binder material.

Applicant has argued that the references fail to disclose that the silica particles are conductive. However, applicant does not delineate the conductivity in the claims. The broadest reasonable interpretation without any guidance from the claims is that silica itself is conductive because just about any material will conduct electricity if enough voltage is applied.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
